

Breaking the Cycle

A Comprehensive EMDR Therapy Approach to Problem Behaviors
Featuring strategies for Problematic Anger, Acting Out and Addictive Behaviors
Presented by Mark Nickerson

EMDR therapy offers unique potential for clients who struggle with a range of problem behaviors across a spectrum of severity. Trauma-driven behaviors compromise life for many clients and for those around them. Identifying and reprocessing related trauma is a crucial part of treatment but often current behaviors need additional methods for change. A range of effective short and long term strategies can be integrated into effective EMDR therapy.

The Cycle Model will be taught as a powerful tool for initial assessment, case formulation and ongoing intervention decision making. It can be used with older children through adults.

The training will feature in-depth coverage of treatment for problematic anger, hostility and violent behaviors addressing clinical issues and populations such as: marital/relational conflict; intimate partner violence; general interpersonal conflict; abusive parenting; post-divorce co-parenting; bullying; angry teens; road rage and low frustration tolerance, combat veterans; ideological hostility/prejudice; anger avoidance and self-directed anger.

Valuable information and intervention strategies from the fields of behavior management and addiction treatment will be integrated within the AIP-informed EMDR approach. A variety of skill building tools, stabilization techniques and the strategic use of special protocols will be presented.

The training will depict the dynamics of acting out behavior and behavioral addictions. Strategies for addressing behavioral addictions will highlight methods for targeting the triggers/urges and sought after rewards of behavioral addiction and will review DeTur, the Feeling State Addition Protocol and other approaches to addictions.

EMDR treatment has a remarkable capacity to go beyond the limits of common psychotherapeutic approaches to problem behaviors. With focused strategies that don't lose sight of the whole person, EMDR intervention offers realistic hope for true behavioral and personal change.

Key points throughout the training will be illuminated with case examples including multiple clips from video-taped clinical sessions. Practicum experiences are included. Participants will leave ready to assist clients with clarity, confidence, and immediately useful
